Урок 7. Разговор по телефону. Text 1

My name is Dima. I speak a little English, but I don't understand well. Especially on the telephone, when Americans and the English are speaking.

Yesterday I called my friend Andrew. He is American. But now he lives and works in Moscow. We work in a firm together. I said: "Hello! May I please speak to Andrew?" A nice woman's voice answered: "He is not here. May I take a message?" I understood that Andrew wasn't there. But I didn't understand what she said next. And I said: "Can you please repeat what you said?" She repeated: "Andrew is not here. May I take a message?" I didn't understand again. And I said: "Thank you. Goodbye". I understood once more how poorly I understand English, I should listen to English speech. And I'll call Andrew again and at the same time I'll get to know what this nice woman's voice said.

Если вы хотите проверить, правильно ли вы поняли содержание текста, можете ответить на вопросы к нему:

1. How does Dima speak English? 2. To whom did he call yesterday? 3. What did he say? 4. What did a woman's voice answer him? 5. What did Dima understand and what didn't he understand? 6. Why will he call Andrew again?

Урок 9. В магазине. Text 4

My name is Patrick. I am a programmer and work in a firm. I have a family: my wife Jane, my son Richard and my daughter Jessica. This morning I decided to go for some cigarettes and beer. My wife Jane said: "Patrick, are you going to the store? That's fine! Please buy 3 containers of milk, some bread, spaghetti, tea, coffee, juice and a package of butter". And my son Richard said: "Daddy, are you going shopping? That's fine! Please buy me some potato chips and chewing gum". And my daughter Jessica said: "Daddy, please buy me some chocolate, ice cream and cookies".

This is my wife who usually goes shopping. I couldn't memorize so much food and I said Jane: "Write a list for me". Jane wrote a list and I went shopping. I started buying. So ... 3 containers of milk, some bread, spaghetti, juice, tea, coffee, a package of butter. So ... Now for my son: some potato chips, chewing gum. So ... Now for my daughter: some chocolate, ice cream, cookies. I think that's all! Whew! I even got tired.

I got home, Jane looked all over and said: "Good for you, Patrick!"

I sat down in an armchair, took a newspaper and remembered: where on earth are the cigarettes and beer? I've forgotten to buy them!

Если вы хотите проверить, правильно ли вы поняли содержание текста, можете ответить на вопросы к нему:

1. What is Patrick and where does he work? 2. Does he have a family? 3. Where did Patrick decide to go this morning? 4. What did he want to buy? 5. What did his wife say him? 6. What did his son say him? 7. What did his daughter say him? 8. What did his wife wrote for him? 9. Did Patrick buy some food? 10. What did he forget to buy?

Урок 9. В магазине. Text 5

My friend Christina likes to go shopping. "Shopping" is her favorite word. But listen – how she goes shopping ...

Christina enters a shop "Clothes" and says to a salesman: "I need an evening dress..." – "Please look around, says the salesman, we have a very good assortment". Christina starts looking the dresses over: this one is too long, that one is too short, this one is too dark, that one is too light, this one has unattractive sleeves, that one has unattractive buttons... No, I like nothing... The salesman says: "Here is a very pretty dress". Christina: "That's not my color". – "What about this one?" – "That's not my size". – "Look at that one". – "How much is it?" – "$ 500". – "It's too expensive". – "Take a look at this one". – "How much is it?" – "$ 200". – "It's too cheap. No, I like nothing", – Christina says and leaves the shop. At the next shop it all happens again.

She went shopping this way and bought nothing. But one day she needed to buy a dress and she remembered seeing a good dress at some shop. She entered the shop, the salesman saw her and said at once: "I am sorry, we have nothing for you. All the dresses are too long or too short, too light or too dark. We don't have your color, we don't have your size either".

Christina went out of the shop and pondered.
